UOP APPOINTS VERONICA M. MAY AS GENERAL MANAGER OF TECHNICAL SERVICES

DES PLAINES, Ill., Sept. 23, 2008 -- UOP LLC, a Honeywell company (NYSE: HON), announced today it has appointed Veronica M. May as general manager for the UOP Technical Service department. She will report directly to Peter Piotrowski, senior vice president of Process, Technology and Equipment.

In this new role, May is responsible for managing UOP Technical Services, which combines UOP's process technology and product service groups into a single cohesive department to support all UOP offerings for its worldwide customers. The new department combines technology support, field service and training services.

May moves to this role from her previous position as Senior Director of the Process Technology and Equipment service group. While there she was instrumental in advancing the creation and use of systems to increase UOP's trouble-shooting capabilities, technical web-based training for customers and other programs which increased the group's ability to serve our customers.

May joined UOP in 1996 as a marketing and business development director for olefins and derivatives. She went on to hold positions of increasing accountability in refining, adsorbents and petrochemicals. In her 12 years with the company, May has also served as director for several business groups where she led worldwide efforts to enhance UOP's portfolio by interfacing with regional sales and capability groups to introduce new technology, products and services to customers around the world.

May earned a bachelor's degree in chemical engineering from Carnegie Mellon University. She is based at the UOP world headquarters in Des Plaines, Ill.

UOP LLC, headquartered in Des Plaines, Illinois, USA, is a leading international supplier and licensor of process technology, catalysts, adsorbents, process plants, and consulting services to the petroleum refining, petrochemical, and gas processing industries.
